Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Sirs:

I'd like to comment on the proposed settlement between the DOJ and Microsoft Corporation.

What I don't understand is, if Microsoft was found to be engaging in monopolistic practices that were against the law, how could there be no penalty for those actions? It seems that the proposed settlement would only try to keep those activities from happening in the future. (weakly)

It makes us wonder whether Microsoft influence and money are tipping the scales of justice. We are saddened at the prospect of our judicial system possibly being compromised in this way.

If Microsoft has broken the law, through the book at them.
